Just thought I'd share this super cool shirt I got and my son Chris! We are filing paperwork for his name change this week. Hoping the pandemic will allow for hearings so we can get it finalized before school starts in the fall. 🥰

Sorry long post.

Hi I joined yesterday. And I have been reading alot of the posts. I was just wondering how many are dealing with a young child going threw this? My little girl born boy is going threw alot she is 7 we have known for quite some time that something was different but we waited for her to come to us. Which she did about 4 months ago said she wasn't a boy but a girl. But it progressed very quickly from there. She also has high functioning autism, ADHD and anxiety. She is a very loved little girl and has alot of support with the family and her virtual school is amazing. But she seems to be having alot of dysphoria or at least that is what I feel she is going threw. And it scares me because I'm not sure how to help her threw it. I'm calling her doctor tomorrow to see if we can get some help set up for her. Her doctor doesn't know yet that she has told me because of covid it hasn't been easy getting to see the doctor but I have had conversations with him in the past that I felt she might take this route so he knows some of what is going on. But I'm not sure what is available in my area for her either. I guess what I'm trying to ask is anyone going threw this and anyone have any advice for me to help her. Thanks for reading

Absolutally love how she's transforming, Does anyone have any tips on ways to make her more confident about herself as she won't go out in front of other children the way she wants to be, at the moment she's him at school but her at home because she's too worried about being bullied, any ideas of how to boost her confidence and make her feel like she can show the real her, I think she's frustrated and is showing in her behaviour because she's hiding herself away at school and outside till she's home

Today was my son's first day back to school in a year and his first day as Max. He did wear boy clothes, but it was before he transitioned. Our school is extremely supportive. He had a good day! One girl was mean, but she was mean last year too. On the playground if kids called him by his dead name he said, "I used to be Zoey, but I'm a transgender boy and my name is Max."

Update:Friday a boy asked him what transgender meant. Max told him, "It's when you look like a girl on the outside but you're really a boy on the inside or when you look like a boy on the outside but you're really a girl inside."

Smartest and bravest kid I know 🏳️‍🌈

My amab daughter Haley is turning 5 next month. She is insisting that she change her name legally before she starts kindergarten. Does anyone know how to do that and how much it costs? Thanks.
